Metal & Steel Works

Metal Works: Metal fabrication is the processing of metal to produce individual parts, assemblies, or large structures. The term covers a wide range of jobs, from large ships and bridges to precision engine parts and delicate jewellery. Metalworking is an industry and a trade. Make useful and ductile tools and ornaments from metal. Modern metalworking processes are diverse and specialized, but can be categorized into forming, cutting, or joining processes to produce useful workpieces. Huda Arabia Private Limited Co. applies metal fabrication to the construction industry by converting designs into practical elements depending on the desired end product.

Stainless steel: is an iron-based alloy containing more than 10.5% chromium. These are used in many industrial applications. There are currently several stainless steels on the market that were originally recognized as standard alloys by the American Iron and Steel Institute (AISI). With so many stainless steels to choose from, choosing the right stainless-steel material must meet design criteria, corrosion or heat resistance, and mechanical properties. The wide range of products produced by Huda Arabia Private Limited Co. primarily relies on 304, 304L, 316, and 316L grades
